

Narrator: Unit Five Test.

Example. Harry.

Harry: If I want to tell my friends something, I just send them a message on my phone. It's quicker, really, as I don't have to spend a long time chatting then! And I save my minutes that way.

Narrator: Speaker 1. Amy.

Amy: Well, I couldn't live without our webcam now. My sister lives in Australia and she's just had her first baby so it's great that we can speak to each other and I can see what's going on. We sometimes use phone calls and emails but I think Skype is better.

Narrator: Speaker 2. Tom.

Tom: My big passion is the environment and I've joined a few forums about it. Then I started my own blog about what's happening in my town. At first I just posted stuff from time to time and I told my friends to check it out but now I'm really into it and I put something on it every day.

Narrator: Speaker 3. Samantha.

Samantha: I've joined quite a few sites as it's really helpful to be able to share experiences about learning Spanish. Some of them are more useful than others but generally they're pretty good. My favourite is a forum that shares tips on pronunciation. I've had some great online chats about it.

Narrator: Speaker 4. Angela.

Angela: I read somewhere that some music stars have over 40 million followers! I read what other people have written, and I add tweets myself. I'm learning to say what I want to say in only a few characters – it's not easy! But it's better than using social media sites or writing comments on other people's blogs.

Narrator: Speaker 5. Kurt.

Kurt: I've got a good mobile, but sometimes there isn't a signal at home. So then I just have to use the house phone. I pick up the receiver, dial the number and speak and I don't have to worry about having enough credit! I find phone calls are faster than texts or emails. You don't always get a quick reply on those.
