What next for communication?

by Jamie Rogers

The way people communicate has changed a lot over the last few years. So many people have to check their Facebook page, Twitter account, emails or text messages every few minutes. How often do you see people in the street not paying any attention to what is going on around them? They are just busy 'communicating'.

For many people, these technological developments are exciting. Science fiction becomes science fact. What will the next big thing be? Imagine communicating with anyone, anywhere in the world through your glasses or your watch – well, you can now. Although these latest inventions are still expensive, they will become cheaper very soon.

On the other hand, this 24/7 communication might result in people spending more time alone, in isolation. There may be no need to meet anyone face to face if you can listen to music, upload video clips, and send and receive text messages and emails through your watch at any time of the day or night.

Although there are, of course, many benefits to the communication systems we have now, there is a danger that soon we will not be able to communicate in a real way. I hope that the advances in technology stop before we all have a microchip and end up being robots!

Choose the correct answer: a, b or c.

- 0 What does Jamie say in the first paragraph about modern means of communication?
  - a They are making our lives better.
  - b They are developing very quickly.
  - c They are becoming easier to use.
- 1 What does Jamie mean when he talks about people 'communicating'?
  - a They are talking to other people in the street.
  - b They are managing to do several things at the same time.
  - c They are checking their electronic devices.
- 2 In the second paragraph, Jamie says for some people, new developments are
  - a very positive.
  - b a bit worrying.
  - c hard to believe.
- 3 Jamie thinks that new devices
  - a will always be too expensive for most people.
  - b will be located in glasses and watches.
  - c will come down in price.
- 4 Jamie is worried that because of new technology, people will
  - a spend too much on the latest devices.
  - b stop being with other people.
  - c get too little sleep at night.
- 5 What would Jamie like to happen in the future?
  - a The technological advances will come to an end before it's too late.
  - b There will be better digital communication.
  - c There will be a greater use of robots.
