A long time ago, there were two friends. They were in a small town.

Kim: We're tired and hungry..

Bob: Please can you give us some food?

Man 1: Can you give me some money?

Kim: No, we can't.

Man 1: No money, no food. Now go away!

But Kim wasn't sad.

Bob: What are you doing, Kim?

Are you making a fire?

Kim: Yes, I am.

Bob: Are you putting water in the pot?

Kim: Yes. I'm making lunch. I'm making soup for us.

Bob: But there's no food!

Kim: Look. There's a stone in the water. I'm making stone soup.

There was a woman on the street.

Woman: Stone soup? Is it good?

Kim: Yes, it is. It's VERY good with potatoes, but I haven't got a potato.

Woman: A potato? Wait a minute!

Bob: Where's she going?

Kim: To the shop.

Soon the woman was back at the fire. She had some potatoes in a bag.

Woman: Here are some potatoes for the soup.

Kim: Thank you.

Then there was a man on the street.

Man 2: What are you making?

Kim: It's stone soup with potatoes.

Man 2: Is it good?

Kim: It's very good. It's GREAT with meat and carrots, but I haven't got any meat or carrots.

Man 2: Meat and carrots? Wait a minute.

Bob: Look, Kim! He's going to the shop.

Soon the man was back at the fire. He had some meat and carrots.

Man 2: Here's some meat for your soup. And here are some carrots.

Kim: Thank you.

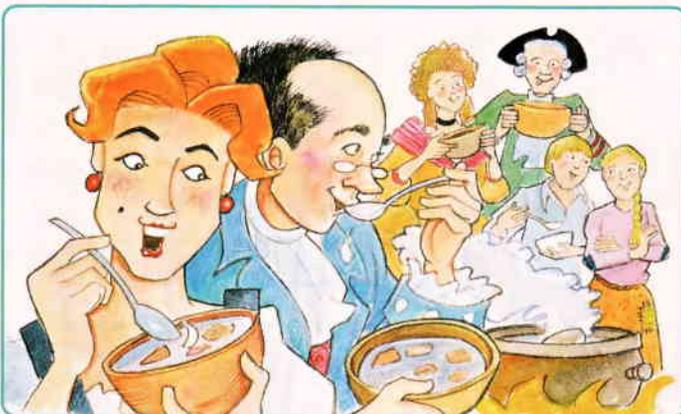

Soon the soup was ready.

Kim: Let's eat the soup now. Be careful! Don't eat the stone!

Bob: The soup IS great, Kim!

Woman: I like stone soup!

Man 2: It's fantastic! The meat and carrots are great.

A lot of people in the village had the stone soup. But not all of the people had it ...

Man 1: I want some stone soup. I can give you some money.

Bob: I'm sorry. There's no soup now.

Kim: That's OK. Here's a stone. Now YOU can make stone soup.

Saint George and the Dragon

Listen, read and act.

For years and years, the dragon was asleep. And then ...

Man 1: Look! It's a dragon.
Woman 1: Run to the city!

The people were behind the city walls.
The terrible dragon was outside. It was very, very hungry.

Ten days later, the King was sad.

King: The dragon is still hungry, but we haven't got food for it. In this hat I've got the names of all the people in the city. Tomorrow, one person goes to the dragon. Please choose a name, Princess Sabra.

Sabra: It is my name, Father.

King: Tomorrow in the morning, Princess Sabra goes outside the city.

That night Sabra's sister, Una, had an idea.

Sabra: Where are you going, sister?

Una: The dragon is sleeping. I'm going for help.

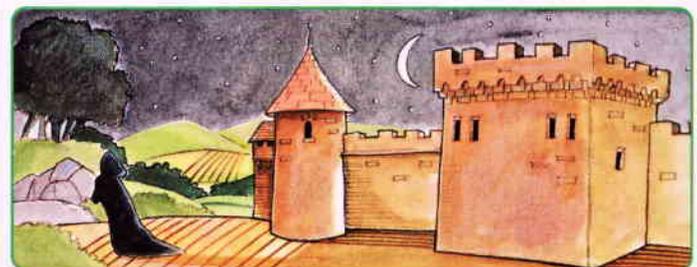

Twenty minutes later, Una was outside the city walls. She was in the woods for hours and hours.

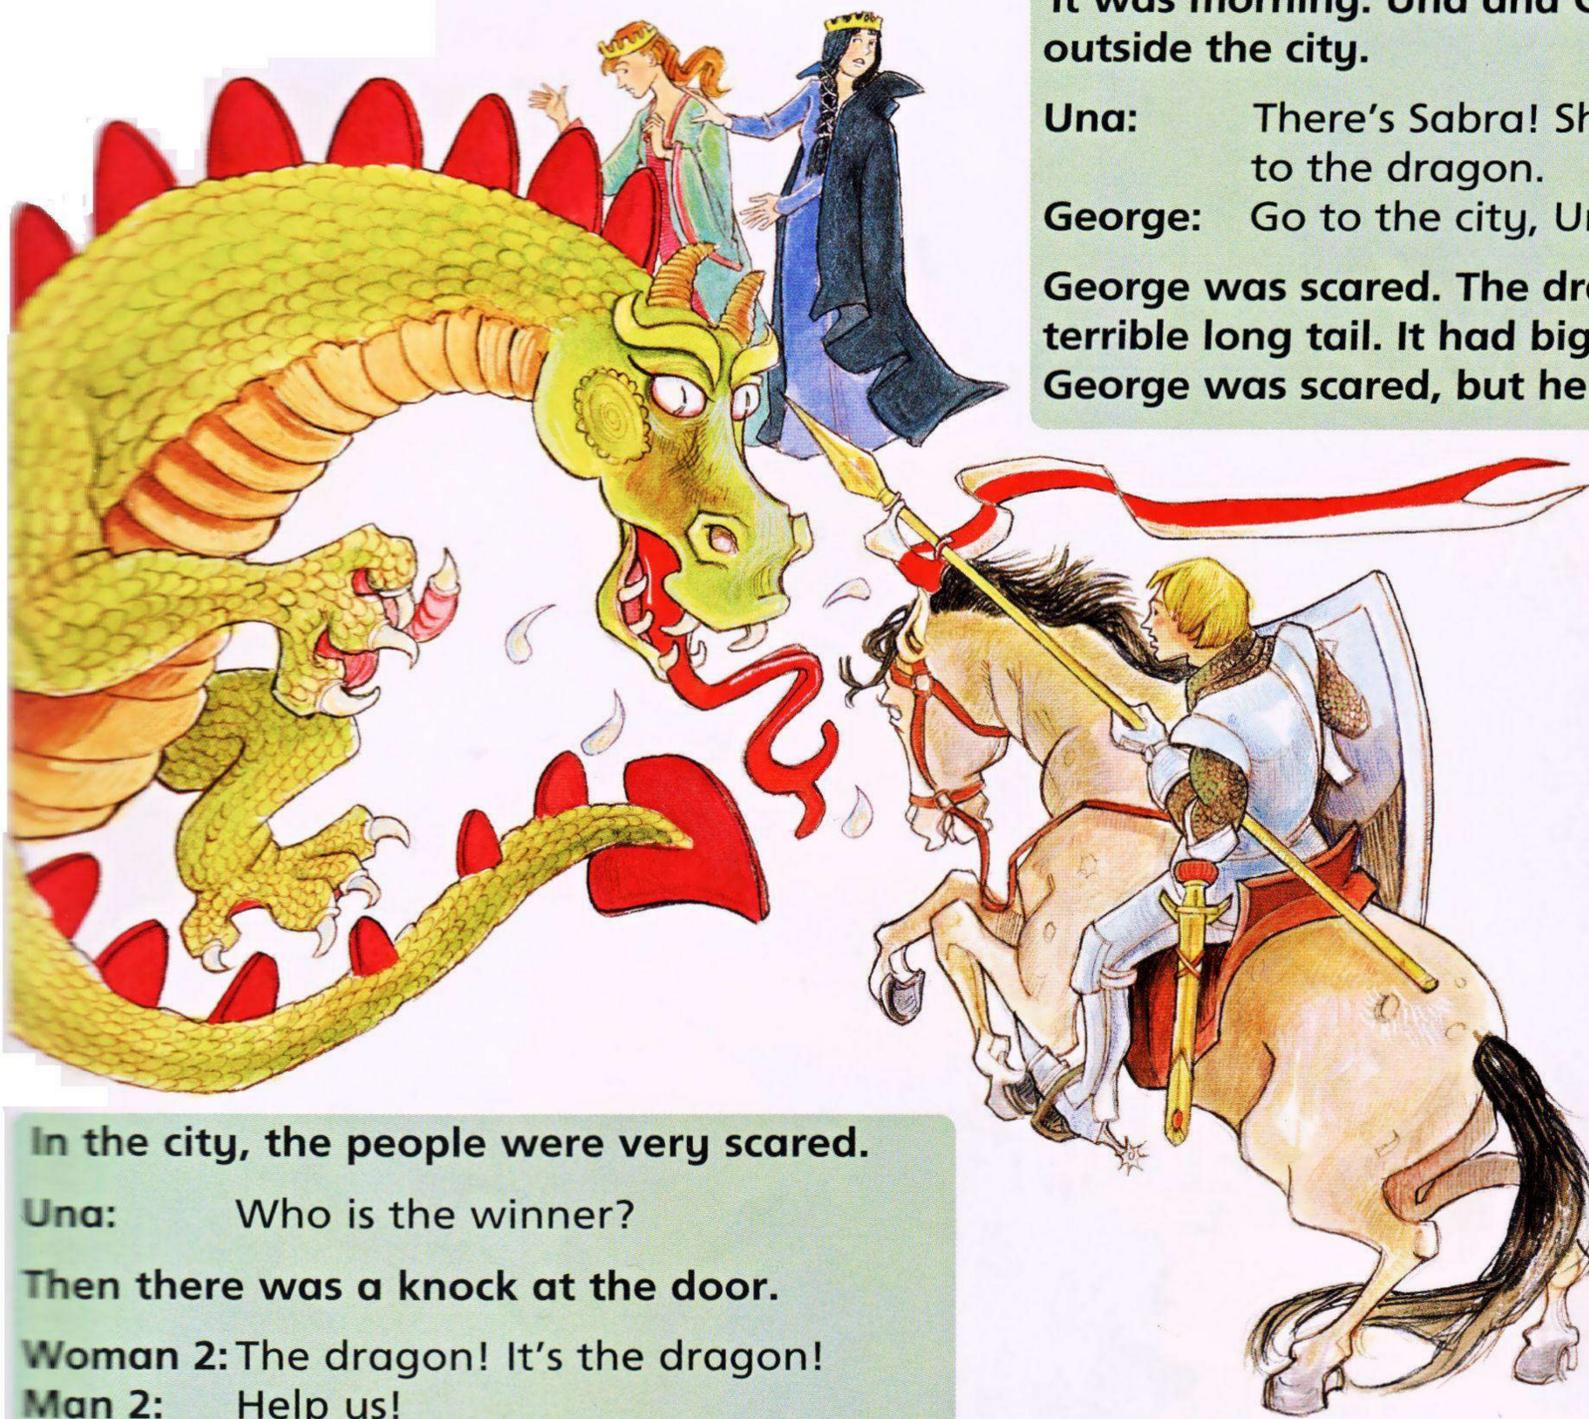

Una: There's a knight! He's sleeping under a tree!

George: What's the matter?

Una: Please help us. There's a terrible dragon outside my city.

George: My name is George. Take me to this dragon.

It was morning. Una and George were outside the city.

Una: There's Sabra! She's walking to the dragon.

George: Go to the city, Una. Wait there.

George was scared. The dragon had a terrible long tail. It had big sharp teeth. George was scared, but he was brave.

In the city, the people were very scared.

Una: Who is the winner?

Then there was a knock at the door.

Woman 2: The dragon! It's the dragon!

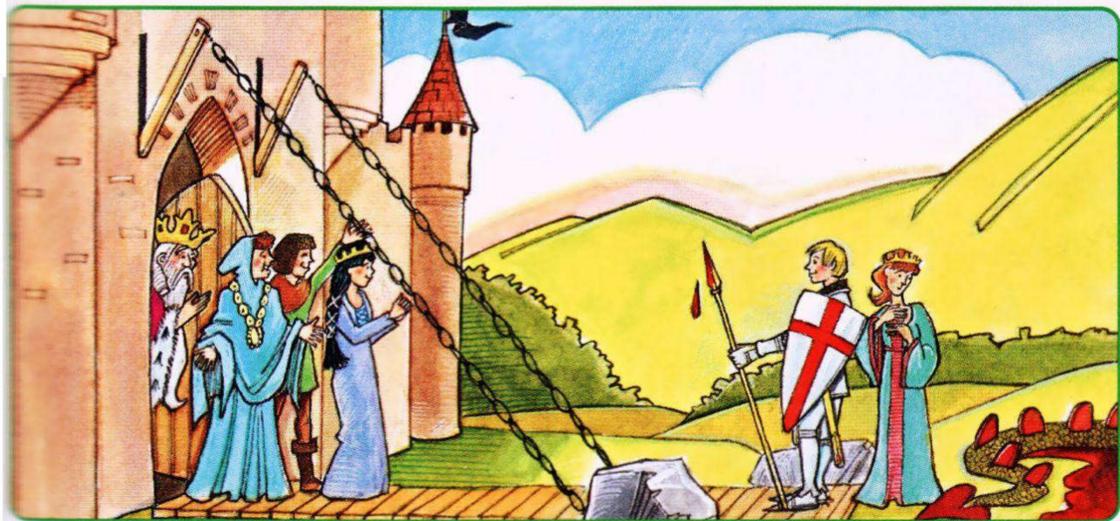

Man 2: Help us!

King: Who's there?

George: It's George. The dragon is dead! Sabra is alive!

People: Hurray! Hurray for George!

And today, hundreds of years later, people still remember the story of Saint George.
