- Ed OK. Emma, can you talk me through the menu – I have no idea what any of these things are.
- Emma Of course.
- Ed Bauernfrühstück mit Salat– sorry, I’m sure it sounds nothing like German.
- Emma Oh, Bauernfrühstück mit Salat. Well ...
- Ed I’m guessing that’s a salad.
- Emma Not really. I mean it comes with salad but it’s a kind of omelette really, with bacon and potato.
- Ed OK. Sounds OK.
- Emma Yeah, it’s great, but to be honest it’s more something I would have for breakfast than dinner.
- Ed And Königsberger Klopse mit Kaperblahdeblah!
- Emma Oh, I love this. My gran used to cook it for me when I was a kid. They’re a kind of meatball and the sauce is with these things – I don’t know the name in English but they look a bit like a pea but they’ve got a sour taste – almost spicy. I love it.
- Ed OK. That could be a possibility. And what about the, er, Berliner Eisbein?
- Emma That’s pork – I don’t know if they have a special word for this in English, but it’s the part around the knee of the leg.
- Ed Oh, really?
- Emma It might not be the best if we’re going to go out later – it’s very heavy – it makes you dance like a brick!
- Ed Right. That doesn’t sound good.
- Emma Well, actually, it’s really tasty, but it’s quite messy to eat as well.
- Ed OK. Well, maybe not that. What about this Rindergulasch mit hausblahdeblah?
- Emma Rindergulasch mit hausgemachten. Oh, this is a kind of beef stew. It’s served with red cabbage.
- Ed Cabbage?
- Emma Yeah. It’s normally green, like a round lettuce, but the leaves are thicker. You usually cook it.
- Ed OK, I know. And this one’s red?
- Emma Well, more purple really.
- Ed OK. Yeah, I don’t really like this vegetable. I think I’ll have the Klopse.
- Emma Do you want a starter?
- Ed No, I think I’ll be OK with that.
- Emma Well, I’ll probably get a green salad on the side.
- Ed OK. That’s great.
- Emma And to drink?
- Ed I don’t mind. Whatever you’re having.
- Emma OK. I’ll see if I can catch the waiter’s eye.
