Why you should listen to your friends

I can't say I wasn't ¹ _____ Martin – I mean, my friends Kelly and Sue were always telling me he was untrustworthy, and that he wasn't the right guy for me. They always seemed ² _____ him – they were quiet in his presence, and watched him carefully, and they said I shouldn't ³ _____ him because he wasn't honest, but of course, I didn't listen. Martin seemed perfect. He was always ⁴ _____ me – you know, telling me I looked great in a dress, or that my hair looked great. And he was really supportive. When I lost my purse, Martin told me not to worry and, the next day, bought me a new one. My sister ⁵ _____ me about that. 'Ohh, your boyfriend is rich as well as handsome,' she said. 'He's every girl's dream.' I told her not to be silly, but I was secretly pleased. I ⁶ _____ him completely, and even kept a photo of him next to my bed. He was kind, good-looking and I had a lot ⁷ _____ him. We even liked the same films. He was the perfect boyfriend. But then, a few weeks ago, everything changed. He stopped texting me all the time and once, when I saw him on the bus with his friends, he ignored me. That really ⁸ _____ me! I was so upset. I didn't want us to split up, but clearly he didn't care anymore. I've stopped waiting for him to call. In fact, now, I wouldn't speak to him even if he did call.

Reading

9 Read the text. Match sentences A–F with gaps 1–5. There is one extra sentence.

Identical twins

Identical twins are born when an egg divides into two, resulting in the birth of two children with identical genes. We all know such twins are often very similar in appearance. ¹___ Twins finish each other's sentences, and share the same tastes in clothes or music. Some have argued that identical twins have mysterious, even psychic, powers.

Although many identical twins claim to know what the other is thinking, there is no evidence to suggest that this is because of special powers. A more believable explanation is that, like any pair of people who have grown up together, they are just good at understanding the thought processes behind what their twin does. Most of us have met up with a brother or sister, or close friend, and immediately asked, 'What's wrong?' because we have unconsciously recognised, in their facial expression, that they are upset in some way. ²___ It is hardly surprising that twins notice the way their brother or sister's facial expressions or body language gives away how they feel. ³___

⁴___ In a recent, widely-reported case, for example, a young man survived a horrific fall thanks to a feeling his twin is supposed to have had. Damien Croft developed a bad headache one evening and, concerned, felt the need to phone his brother to check if everything was OK. When there was no reply, he drove to his brother's home, only to find him unconscious, having had an epileptic fit and fallen from a ladder while decorating. ⁵___ In truth, of course, the events might also be explained in more ordinary terms. Damien knew his brother was decorating, and knew that he was prone to epileptic fits. Subconsciously concerned, he had just imagined the worst-case scenario. The fact that something awful had happened was only a coincidence.

- A Signs we would miss in a stranger's behaviour are instantly obvious in the way those close to us act.
- B On the face of it, his sixth sense had saved the day.
- C The media is full of stories in which a twin senses her brother or sister to be in trouble.
- D Some believe, however, that there is also a close connection between twins in the way they think, not just in the way they look.
- E Despite years of research, no scientists have been able to fully explain why twins establish such close relationships.
- F Indeed, the closeness of their bond is likely to improve this ability over the years.
